Could an acappella group reinvent one of the classics from 1982? This Slovenian choir did. And it beats the original.

Seems like no sound the first few seconds.....but it is there!!!!

This fun YouTube video features a 1980s pop classic. The rock band Toto scored their biggest hit with Africa in 1982. The song is instantly recognizable. But it has been reinvented.

Perpetuum Jazzile is an acappella jazz choir from Slovenia. It's hard to think of something further from a '80s rock band. But their version of Africa may best the original. The group has amazing voices.

But the beginning of this video is really striking. Group members simulate an African thunderstorm with their hands. It's really something to see and hear.
